

Planning my first ever event at Ossett was always going to be challenging, although it was always a good area for me to start with. The area provided multiple challenges, and ensuring the event was open and accessible to all was a top priority throughout the planning process and I'm so pleased we were able to provide a junior course.

It was nice to hear that a lot of runners enjoyed their courses especially the sprint sections. This was always something I was keen on providing to make the courses challenging especially the park at the end. It was interesting to hear the feedback from runners.

I appreciated all the positive and constructive feedback that was provided at today's event, so thank you to all who approached me. There is still a lot to learn, areas to improve and hopefully the next time I plan, I can improve even further. I look forward to continuing my learning.
